CM: We will give you the sign of the Lion which will start you on your journey along the Scouting Trail. You will need lots of support from your family as you try to attain Cub Scouting's highest honor, the Arrow of Light.

The red on your cheeks is for adventure from the Lion Trail.

(Parents paint one horizontal stripes on each cheek)

The black on your cheeks is for happiness along the Tiger Trail.

(Parents paint one horizontal stripes on each cheek)

The yellow on your chin is for sunlight when you attempt the Wolf Trail.

(Parents paint two vertical stripes on chin)

Lion Cubs, remember the meaning of your Lion paint. It shows that you are ready to move along the trail of Scouting.

Your den leader will now present your Lion Partners with your Lion Badge. Your parents will present you with your badge.

Now we will hand you your parent's pin to present to your parent who has helped you on your trail.

Congratulations to you and your family on completing this part of the Cub Scout Trail.
